I will be a good steward. All that I have or desire belongs to You, Lord. Thank you for trusting me with your treasures. My increase is a direct reflection of my stewardship.

I will practice discipline, self-control, and delayed gratification--keys to financial success. The time for a blessing is not always "right now," but may be a matter of "not yet."

I will learn to live beneath my means. No one has ever taken three steps forward and four steps backwards and reached their destination. Likewise, I cannot expect to win if my outflow exceeds my inflow.

I will save and invest to increase what I've been given. It is my responsibility to ensure that my seasoned years are financially healthy and able to sustain me all the days of my life.

I will be content in whatever situation I find myself. My faith reminds me that God is bigger than my financial situation. He will bring me through in His time. And in the end, I will remember the lesson.

I will give generously and cheerfully as a symbol of gratitude for the many blessings I've received. It is more blessed to give than to receive. Nothing I give compares to the greatest giver of all time, Jesus.

I will not allow debt to consume my life with fear and stress, which keep me from living out my purpose. I will avoid or eliminate my debt as quickly as possible so that I can help others and prepare for my future.

I will maintain a budget. My budget is my roadmap to financial wellness. I will study my map regularly to ensure that I am moving in the right direction. If I run into roadblocks, I will get back on track.
